You told me that I should believe and see, get all the things I could dream for me
I don't believe in vain promises, I only follow what I'd like to be

You are the rainbow colouring my sky, I know the world is made of paper art
For those who dream of a masterpiece, for those who dream about the seventh sky

My virtue flies beyond what you could or would suppose to stare
That's why I pretend to be careless as if nothing would ever change

Who knows someday I might be better soul, fly on the wings, wings of my song
I know you always tried to care for me, but take it slow so I can still see me

Clack your heels, listen to what I say, don't set me in those foolish ways
And I promise I will understand, that life is more than a simple place
